Miss Rebecca Evans and Thomas Cooper Mitchell, Jr., were married at 8 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents, 304 Virginia avenue. Before the ceremony Miss Frances Pethick accompanied by Miss Eleanor Jameson sang "Because" and "At Dawning." The Rev. T. W. Young officiated and the ceremony was read under an arch of asparagus ferns and phlox, in the doorway between the dining room and the sun porch. Frank Houston played the wedding march and he was accompanied by Edgar Thursday and Whipple Newell who played the violins. The bride's father, N. D. Evans, gave her away. Her dress was fashioned of white satin with an over drape of white lace and a satin train. Her veil was caught by a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies. Her sister, Miss Lucille Evans, who acted as maid-of-honor, was gowned in pink georgette combined with pink satin and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. Miss Edie Gray, one of the bridesmaids, was dressed in a green and gold changeable tulle; Miss Jean Bright, another bridesmaid, wore blue and silver tulle; and Miss Virginia Rodgers was dressed in apricot and rose tulle; and Miss Katherine Conley wore pink and silver tulle. The bridesmaids' dresses were made with plain bodices, scalloped hems and they were trimmed with different colored tulle roses. They carried the ribbons forming the aisle for the wedding party. Little Hamilton Daves, the flower boy, carried a basket of Ophelia roses tied with pink tulle. He was dressed in a blue crepe de chine suit. James Phelan acted as best man.

When the cake was cut during the reception which followed the ceremony Miss Mary Susan Estes received the dancing medals. Miss Catherine Ware cut the dime and Miss Edie Gray received the wedding. Miss Virginia Rodgers caught the bride's bouquet.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Miss Lucie Mitchell, and Mrs. Gladys Coul, Kansas City; and Mrs. Hamilton Daves and small son, Hamilton, Jr., Montclair, N. J.

The bride and groom left this morning for Kansas City and they will be at home there after October 15.

FALL HATS HAVE FUR AND FEATHERS

Not only the birds of a feather flock together but all sorts of animals when we gaze upon a gathering of new fall hats. A monkey-fur hat and a small metalized turban with flowing coque feathers from Joseph show two animals robbed for mid-lady's chapeaux. But Irene Castle passes both carelessly by with a smart turban of black brocade combined with satin while the white cord forms a medallion upon which dances with cameo-like grace, a Grecian figure.

Popularity of Bobbed and Henna Hair Is a Disputed Question

That women are alike only in the fact that they are all different, and that there are no particular "tendencies" in hair styles in Columbia, is the opinion of the proprietors of beauty parlors here.

One the ever-timely subject of bobbed hair there was the widest disagreement. At one shop the proprietor said she thought bobbed hair was surely here to stay; that, with few exceptions, the girls liked it and did not want it to grow out; and that, in spite of all predictions, more girls were having their hair cut all the time.

At the second shop the woman in charge was inclined to believe bobbed hair is on the wane. She said a great many girls were tired of it and wanted it in possession of their locks seems, in the opinion of hair dressers, to be about the same as last year. One proprietor said that girls in Columbia almost always prefer to do their own hair, and that older women affect conservative styles. Another proprietor said that fashions predicted as the style much more hair, and that piled on top of the head. When the reporter expostulated at the style of more hair, this woman laughed and said, "Why you can always get it and pin it on. Don't you realize that this fashion will make hair dressing lots easier?"

And, with the questions of "to bob or not to bob" and "to puff or not to puff" thus discussed one other, "to henna or not to henna" remained. Here, too, views clashed. One proprietor said she was using more henna than ever and that it took the place of dye and color restorer. At the next place, the use of golden glint was maintained to be the favorite, although a great deal of henna was also used there. The proprietor said her customers used them both to brighten and lighten their hair. Then the third woman, the one who disapproved of bobbed hair, said that she never used dye henna or golden glint, and that she thought they were all detrimental to the hair.
